LOVE OF COUNTRY AND HOME.

There is a land, of every land the pride. Beloved by Heaven o'er all the world beside. Where brighter suns dispense screner light. And rollder moons emparadise the night. A land of leasty, virine, vidor, truth, Time-intored age, and love-exalted youth; The randering mariner, whose eye explores The wealthiest isles, the most enclaining shares. Views not a realm so beautiful and fair, Nor breathes the spirit of a parer air; In every clime, the magnet of his soul, Touched by remembrance, trembles to that pole; For, in this land of Heaven's peculiar grace The heritage of Nature's noblest race, There is a upor of earth supremely blest, Where man, Creation's tyrant, caras aside White in his softened looks benignly blend Here women reigns; the mother, daughter, friend Here women reigns; the mother, daughter, wife, Strews with fresh flowers the narrow way of life; I the clear heaten of her delightful eye.

An angel guard of love and generalie: Around her knees domestic duties meet And fireside pleasures gambol at her feet, Where shall that land, that spot of earth be found? Lit then a turn, a patriot? Look around; Oh! thou shot had, however thy footsteps room The land thy country, and that spot thy home.

HOW TO KEEP HIM.

"Out again to-night?" said Mrs. Hayes feelfally, as her husband rose from the tea table and damed his great coat.

"Yes, I have an engagement with Moore:
shall be in early; leave a light in the library. Good night," and with a careless nod, William Huyes left the room.

Always the way," muramed Lizzie Hayes, her sewing, Lizzie took the piano stool. She sinking back upon a sofa, "out every night." I had a very sweet voice, not powerful, but most believe he cares one bit about me now and yet we've been married but two years. man could have a more orderly house. I'm sime and I never go anywhere I am not a bit extravagant. Oh, dear I why is if ! I was not rich: he did not marry me for money. and he must have loved me then-why does he may treat me with so much neglect? And with her mind filled with such fretful queries, Lizzie Hayes fell asleep on the sofa.

Lizzie Hayes fell asteep on the sota.

Let me print her picture as she lay there.

She was a blond, with a small getechit figures and a very pretty face. The hair, which shows in the basker, and William was ready to go up stairs; the waves, its tendency to cord, was brushed smoothly back, and gathered into a rich knot at the back, "it was such a bother to cord knot at the back, "it was such a bother to cord knot at the back, "it was such a bother to cord knot at the back, "it was such a bother to cord was a beside for in an instant. it," she said; her cheek was pale, and her whole face wore a discontented expression. Whole faces was a neat chintz wrapper, but she wore neither collar nor sleeves. "What's the use of dressing up just for William?"

use of dressing up just for William?

Lizzie slept soundly for two hours, and then awoke suddenly. She sat up, glanced at the clock, and sighed dreavily at the long interval still to be spent alone before bedtline.

The library was just over the room in which the sat, and down the furnace flue, through the fregister, a voice came to the young wife's cars, it was her husband's.

it was her husbanus.

"Well, Moore, what is man to do? I was desappointed, and I must have pleasure somewhere. Who could have fancied that Lizzie Marvis, so perfectly sprightly and Tarris, so perfectly sprightly and Tarris could change to the fretful dowdy site now is? Who wants to stay at home and hear his wife whings all the consing about her tenthesia. ing all the evening about her troublesome serrants, and headaches, and all sorts of bothers. She has got the knack of drawling, that upon my life I do not believe she could speak a pheasant word."

Lizzie sat as if stunned. Was this true She looked in the glass, if not exactly a dowdy, her costume was certainly not fit for an evening, BLACK GOODS—WM. C. [sept 25] even if it were an evening at home, with only William to admire. She rose and softly went to her own room with bitter and sorrowful thoughts, and a firm resolution to win back her husband, and then, his love regained, keep it. The next morning William came into the room with his usual careless manner, but a bright smile came on his lips as he saw. Lizzie A pretty chintz wrapper, with a near collar and sleeves of snowy markin, and a wreath of soft full curls, had really inclumorphosed her a while the blush her husband's admiring glaure called up to her cheek did not detract from her beauty. At first William thought there must be a guest, but glancing, he found they were *Mone.

"Corae, William, your coffee will be stone BANDAGE ROLLERS BLISS cold," said Lizzie, in a cheery, pleasant voice. "It must be cool till you sweeten my break-fast with a kiss, said her bushend, crossing the room to her side; and Lizzie's Leart bounded as she recognized the old lover's tone and man Not one fretful speech, not one complaint fell upon William's car during the med.

Rewspaper, his usual solace at that hour, lay untouched, as Lizzie chattel gaily on every untorched, as Lazzae enution gain on every pleasant subject she bought of, warming by his gratified interest and conduct momen.

"You will be at home to dinner?" she said.

Monocompying high positions, especially in: democratic government, are legitimate obejets of criticism, so far as their policy or public nets recognized between a proper criticism of the acta and the use of such language as indicates our sympathy with braitors in arms against the Gov-"a critic's eye," all the acts of public policy become as it were, the indicaors of the public continient, in regard to such policy, we, at the same time, utterly deny that this liberty can rigaring be first as a veloci of licentionsness, and abused or prostituted to the base purpose the poison of treason into minds and hearts that by designing demagogoes, and consenting to be basely used as the means of bringing into noteriety and foi-ting into power, men whom they well know are designing, corrupt and traitorous. Such a press has no right of habeas corpus reserved in such a time, and should be closed and the editors placed in a position to do their commy service in a more retired position.-Now, in regard to "our President," whom we have placed at 'the head of our article for a brief consideration, we have to say that, placed in so exalted a position at such a time, and clothed with powers such as never before surrounded the Chair of State in this country, if he has failed to become a leader who could "save his people," there are causes for his fullingemises, because all effects have causes. Let us contemplate them briefly. Abraham Lincoln, the President of the Unitad States, it has been said, is not a strong, that is, an able man. This may be so, but we are of the opinion that he is a man of ability, or he would not have occupied the public positions. which he has, coliminating at last in the Presidency of these United States. But Abrabam Lincoln is a man, and his residence and rocial relations have been such as to place him. exactly where we did not want a norm to come from just now, that is, midway between the North and the South. There we found him and there he has been ever since, Mr. Lincoln has near and dear relations in the South, some A. M. Ealon. of whom have died in the cause of secession.--Human nature is human nature, and will not be otherwise, till it becomes transmignated,-We do not accuse the Treadent's loyalty, but, probably unknown to him-off, he failed to feel in his heart that this war, to be successful, many be carried on with vigor, and without the least squint to any compromes, but the uncondithough surrouder of the reliefs and their return On Miscellances Subjects Alten O.
